By the Associated Press.

NEUDECK, Germany, Aug. 4.

CONFIDENCE in Adolf Hitler as "the Leader of New Germany" was expressed today by Franz von Papen, until recently vice-chanceller and til recently vice-chancellor and a critic of extreme Nazi-ism, af-ter a visit to the death bed of President Paul von Hindenburg. Von Papen said Hitler would serve as "a trustes of President von Hindenburg's noblest tradition and history who will continue the work to which the life of the sainted marshal was devoted."

The statement was regarded as reassuring to Nazis, since Von Papen had been considered a leader of conservative Ger-many. He was named special envoy to Austria by Hitler last week. Von Papen was a favorite of Von Hindenburg and it was re-ported after the June 30 revolt the President sent a stern warning that the vice-chancel-lor must not be molested.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

DAYS of burning sunlight. Scorching winds that blight and wither. Trees either dying or in a condition of suspended animation. Minor forms of vegetation seared. A virtual cessation of all normal processes of growth in nature, usually so husuriant during the summer months. An eager search for that greatest essential f life, water, soon perhaps to become more precious than gold. Such are the manifestations of possibly one of the most devastating and widespread fainless periods that has occurred on the North American continent within the history of civilized man.

Nature is suffering, and since all forms of life are irrevocably dependent upon her condition, all must suffer with her. Even the smalle: insects are affected. Flies, bugs, beetles, bees; one finds them collected by the thousands at some isocial and a second of the second of the Flies, bugs, beetles, bees; one finds them collected by the thousands at some isolated pool maintained by the seepage of rapidly vanishing ground water.

What is the essence of all this; that nature seems to have no care for what normally are her cherished creatures?

Like a worfully sick and delirious parent, she recognizes, apparently, no compassion, no pity.

Are we not witnessing a strange phenomenon? The ground littered with the leaves of many a noble tree. Bare branches in midsummer! How profound, how fundamental are the effects of heat and an excessive dryness of the soil! And yet, doubtless, it is all essential in the economy of nature. Man can only wonder and guess at what the beneficial effects may be. Certainly all chemical processes in nature have ceased. Is it not probable that this will have a purifying effect on the soil and climate for years to come? ARTHUR JOBSON. Marceline, Mo.

"The Snootlest People."

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
GEORGE E. ALLEN of Washington surely hit the nail on the head when he said the employment and social service agency workers are the snootiest people. I have been a social worker and will say that the average worker is hard-builed, and is void of sympathy and charity. Over 48 per cent of those right here in St. Louis are married women whose hus-bands are working; and they are drawing $25 to $40 per week. Then they have to tell the unfortunates how to live on $5

He saw that the men were taken in out of the rain and cold and personally saw that those thousands of applicants were taken care of, given jobs within the quickest time possible, so they were not put to discomfort, and did a lot of other things. I don't know his name, but he certainly worked long hours and did his work well. That is the kind of worker we want man who realize that people are want; men who realize that people are human beings and are entitled to cour-tesy (which does not cost anything), but

KEEP PROSECUTOR ANDERSON.

The public interest demands the renomination Tuesday and the re-election in November of C. Arthur Anderson as Prosecuting Attorney of St. Louis

This conclusion, reached without prejudice against either of Mr. Anderson's fellow contestants in the eratic primary, is based partly on his record in scutor for only 19 months, yet in that comparatively short time he has put himself, his associates and the power of his office on the side of law enforcement so effectively as to earn the gratitude of every law-abiding citizen of the county. In his attitude toward racing, which is illegal in Missouri; toward amercialised gambling, toward organised crime, Mr. Anderson has stood without equivocation on the side of the law.

Among those opposing him is Tony Foley, Louis County gambler, who recently sought to start the dogs running again on the old track beyond Wellston with the pious profession that the gambling ment had been removed. The explanation of from closing the track.

AMERICAN HIGHWAY NEEDS.

Any St. Louisan with a modern automobile who has toured far afield lately can testify to the need of modern design and construction in American highways. He can be proud that Missouri, to a considerable extent, has made excellent progress along this line. In every state, the contrast between outmoded old roads and the regrettably small mileage of wellplanned new ones is striking.

Many main highways of the country, carrying heavy traffic, are utterly unsuited to their task. The prevalence of low-priced cars, capable of quick acceleration and high speed, demands smooth, wide, straight thoroughfares, with a minimum of intersections and other hazards. Such a route as the new U. S. No. 66, in St. Louis County, with its multiple lanes and grade separations, represents a great improvement, but even it has not been developed as far as possible to promote safety and speedy transit. Main routes everywhere should be widened wherever traffic volume warrants. In some places, the lanes of opposing flow should be separated by a parkcourse, with railroads, should be eliminated. Smooth paving is a necessity.

It is no longer an idle dream to propose such im provements. Certainly, the value of adequate highways connecting the principal centers is manifest.

ble piece about Jack Cochran. He says Jack is the lar interest are his remarks concerning the need for Caligula of Missouri. He tells us, in a quaint yet a British understanding of the American Middle vivid way, what kind of chap Caligula was. He was about as mean a shoat as wallowed across the Roman stage, so Mr. Shannon says. He enjoyed mutilating little children. He doted on tossing Christians to the lions. If there were no Christians around, he would tell his gangsters to throw in some pagans. The show had to go on. That was Caligula's notion. The fellow was tough.

Excepting Mr. Shannon, we doubt that anyone has ever thought of bracketing Caligula and Jack Cochran. And how a serene old sage like Mr. Shannon should harbor so dreadful a thought both baffles and distresses us. For the years have silvered the Shannon head. Time and the funerals of time have bestowed upon him the adjective venerable. He is an elder statesman. Shrewdness was always his, but, one had fancied, the shrewdness might have mellowed into kindliness. The tumbrels that rolled across the cobbles of Kansas City when Joe Shannon's rabbits fought it out, tooth for tooth, eye for eye, with the goats of another boss-why, it all seems as long ago and far away as the griefs and agonies by the Tiber's tawny flow.

We believe we can suggest a happier effort for the scholarship of Mr. Shannon-a thesis on Tom Pendergast, the Marcus Aurelius of the Kaw.

A GREAT CONSERVATION VICTORY.

Thirty years ago, the egret was a common visitor along the Mississippi and its tributaries. Nesting in the coastal waters of the Gulf of Mexico, the egret brought its young north in middle summer to fish the rivers and sloughs. Snow clouds of these graceful birds, sometimes decorating the willows along the river, were a familiar sight in the past.

Disappearance of the egret was due to commercialism. In the breeding season, the plumes of the birds are very beautiful. The egret plume was prized by the milliner, and the plume hunter did not scruple his name does not come to mind. For Rabbi Wise's to shoot the snowy bird in its bridal finery, even place in twentieth century New York is strikingly killing it on the nest, or when it was feeding its like that which Savonarola occupied in the Florence young. The Weimar Constitution provided for the Chancellor to succeed on the death or incapacity of the President, pending elections. This proved inconvenient to the Nazie when Gen. Von Schleicher became Chancellor in 1932. Since he controlled the army and Prussian police, it was feared he would be established in power should the President die. So the Nasis brought about an amendment changing the succession to the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court.

But this proved no obstacle to Hitler's presen coup. By the enabling act of March 23, 1933, the Cabinet was empowered to enact laws which "may deviate from the Constitution in so far as they do not affect the position of the Reichstag and the Poley's opposition is simple. Aided by deputies of Reichsrat." (The Reichsrat has since been abolished: the Sheriff, Mr. Anderson raided the track and then the Reichstag reduced to nullity.) So the Cabinet bested Foley when the latter tried to get an injune gave full power to Hitler by decreeing: "The office tion that would have prevented county authorities of the Reichspresident is united with that of the Reichschancellor." It was as simple as that. Hitler "There will be no horse or dog racing in St. Louis again has realized a lofty ambition by a swift action.

Storm Troop discontent was not ended by the "blood purge" of June 30, but may still be felt. And the economic position of Germany is in no way improved by the coup. Foreign exchange is virtually exhausted, the shortage of raw materials and food continues, for eign trade is at a standstill, unemployment is little reduced, a miserable winter confronts the people.

If absolute power for Hitler would solve Germany's problems, the country now would be on the high road to prosperity. But more troubles remain than the ukase of any man on horseback can remove. Hitler at the height of his temporal power, faces his greatest

He did not detour around the historic sore spots, but used them frankly to show how impressions last and how appearances give shape to popular feeling. Of particu-West. ### TAKING NO CHANCES.

Washington commentators are speculating on what nduced North Carolina's Fourth Congressional District to go to the trouble and expense of electing a Representative a few days ago to occupy the seat of Edward William Pou, late dean of Congress. The inference is that the voters have done something wholly unnecessary in choosing Harold E. Cooley, since Congress is not in session and in all likelihood will not meet this year. (If Mr. Cooley is to serve in the next regular session, he will need to be elected again in November.) Those who want to may explain this by suggesting that the Tar Heal State's Fourth District thinks a lame-duck session still convenes the December following election. We prefer to believe that the people who live in its seven counties are so interested in the pulsating business of government in 1934 that they are not going to take any chance of being caught unprepared. Let an unexpected summons come from Washington and Central North Caro line could respond in the person of a Representative with fresh instructions from home. Here is a district on its toes and waiting for the gun.

Trans-Atlantic Misconceptions

Psychology generated by historic differences between American and British peoples survives those differences, Harvard law professor explains; England, he says, needs to pay greater attention to the views of our Middle West; British press and educational institutions can do much to correct the old mistaken notions, he suggests.

From an Address Over the British Broadcasting System by Prof. Felix Frankfurter; Reprinted from the Listener (London).

UR common speech-or as much of English speech as we have in common ceives us into assuming a greater identity than really exists between us. The psychology generated by deep historic events long survives those events. It may seem farfetched to find in the Parallellary to the property of t fetched to find in the Revolution, the War of 1812, and England's attitude toward our Civil War, explanations to the way the English appear to Americans today. But we fool ourselves in believing the past is dead. I don't mean to suggest that there still is a lively sense of grievance against the England of George V because of the En-gland of George III. But we do sometimes find in English behavior the kind of attitude that leads some of your dominions to say that the mother country doesn't quite realize that the children are grown up.

Our people occasionally suspect you are not wholly aware that we are no longer a young offshoot. It is a nice feeling on your part to look upon the gropings and growing pains of the American nation as the antics of a lively young child, interesting, at times even original, but nevertheless a child.

even original, but nevertheless a child.

The whole Civil War episode has left, I believe, very deep marks. That war was for us a kind of holy cause on behalf of freedom and democracy, and the hostility to it which we saw in the attitude of upper-class English opinion confirmed American belief that England was really hostile to the aims of the American Republic. I am not suggesting this as the whole truth, or even a good part of it. The evolution of popular feeling is due as much to americane as to reality.

We think you superior and at times even supercilious because, somehow or other, you have managed to make us feel that you think us inferior and crude. Nor have your great popular writers on America, like Charles Dickens, helped to dissipate such an impression. Caricature is a favorite medium

Charles Dickens, helped to dissipate such an impression. Caricature is a favorite medium in describing a people, and America lent itself to caricature.

It requires something more to see below the material conquest of a continent, the groping efforts, often stumbling and awkward, to create a more decent civilization for the great mass of common people.

To Americans, you seem rather thrifty of speech, and an American in your presence soon feels that the enthusiasm so natural to him is regarded as a form of bad manners. But Americans who see you on your own soil soon realize that behind apparent casualness there is an extraordinarily civilized hospitality. Almost invariably this experience of the reality of English life accounts for the warmth of feeling aroused in Americans who come to know you intimately. There have siways been lively currents of intercourse between a highly select class of Englishmen and their friends on the American seaboard. Englishmen have intimate connections with New York and Boston, Philadelphia and Washington, and they think they know the United States. Nothing could be further from the truth. The consequences are ofen very serious. When a seading English statesman, in a speech intended uences are ofen very serious. When a sead-ng English stateman, in a speech intended or America, says that even the Middle West ught to be able to understand his argument, it any wonder that two-thirds of America should again be confirmed in its belief that the English are supercilious and superior? Such an attitude, of course, is born not at all of ill will, but comes from ignorance out American life. Why can't we have, we are frequently asked. a good cabinet form of government and be done with it? Here again, the Englishman illustrates his intellectual insularity, our difficulties, his failure to realize that to govern a continent is a very different thing from governing a tight little island. After all, the great educational centers are the fountain heads of knowledge, and perhaps it is not merely the vanity of Americans that is surprised to find deep neglect of American institutions in your universities.

In saying this, I am not forgetting that one of the best books ever written about the American Government was by an En-glshman, Lord Bryce. Nevertheless, it is true that American history is still very much of a stepchild, and this, I think, largely accounts for the absence of natural centers of correction for wrong notions about the United States.
As a result, the vast influence of se alism in the whole life of the United States is something that is very remote from the knowledge of Englishmen. You think of the United States as all of a piece. In fact, however, apart from the great difference be-tween the metropolitan areas and the countryside, the United States is a confederation of great regions. You learn about those movis, and so romance and riot are your dominant impressions. While all of you know about Al Capone, probably not one in 10,000 has heard of Jane Addams. Yet Jane know about Al Capone, probably not one in 10,000 has heard of Jane Addams. Yet Jane Addams is at least as significant of America. This is where the press comes in I am not criticising: I am reporting. It is a fact that your normal flow of news from the United States is through New York and Washington. Now, in many ways, New York is least representative of the currents of the United States. Washington is, of course, the political center of the nation, but the currents of the country are only registered in Washington and not set up there. What the "folks back home" think and feel can hardly be known through the clicking of a typewriter. What is needed is that the exciting and violent and incomprehensible aspects of American life should be projected against the background of the everyday, familiar, normal ways of life of 180,000,000 people in the setting of the varied circumstances of a continent. The surviving historical fictions and feelings on your side will gradually be displaced only if through the press and over the wireless, through school histories and through personal contact, there is built up a sense and a feeling of what America—its vast, sprawling groping civilization—is like. Then, though you will find the Americans have their oddities and eccentricities and enough of violence and intensity both to thrill and puszie you, you will also come to see these excesses in the perspective of the whole, and you will find that the community between your people and ours is ever so much greater than our differences.

Is Drouth Here to Stay?

From the New York Times.

A NSWERING the question whether, be-cause of persistent drouth and abnormal heat for several summers, fertile fields are to be turned into a desert, Science Service offers reassuring information. Long-time changes in climate have been measurable "in terms of millennia rather than by decades." Camels are not likely to be substituted for cows in Nebraska "in anything like our time." A permanent, marked change in tem-perature or other weather conditions is not to be inferred from what has occurred dur ing two or three seasons. There was a time, ages ago, when the wild horse, the Asiatic antelope with horns, the rhinoceros without horns and the gigantic camel all dwelt in Nebraska. Then, millenniums later, there seems to have come a dryer, warmer climate. During that period, of Oklahoma, the Corn Belt migrated east-ward, following the retreating forests, till the cooler, moister climate again made pos-sible high-tree growth in the Ohio Valley and pushed the cultivation of corn back upon the prairies.

A Scottish scientist writing of man and his past said that the reason there never-grew up a great "native" aboriginal civilization in the alluvial valleys of this continent, and especially in the Mississippi Valley, was that "nature was ready but man was not." The European tenant was, however, being equipped for its occupancy and was intrusted with its development. But this has involved his never-ceasing struggle and his constant ingenuity in meeting the ever-changing conditions: heat, cold, flood, drouth, pest and bodily ills. It was asked of man in the Book of Job:

"Canst thou lift up thy voice to the clouds that abundance of water may cover thee? Who can pour out the bottles of heaven when dust runneth into a mass and the clods cleave together?"

Though man cannot "make a decree for

Though man cannot "make a decree for the rain," he can "mete out waters by measure" and "make a weight for the wind," and so prepare against what he cannot yet wholly control. In such earth-struggle with the "elements," the finite is annihilated, and they who make it courageously may, in Pas-cal's phrase, "hold their heads high without boastfulness."

WEAKNESS IN LIQUOR LAWS.

From the Kansas City Journal-Post.

J. Becker, State Supervisor of Liquor L. Control, says that the Missouri penalties for violation of the liquor laws are too mild. He intends to ask the next Legislature to make violations felonies instead of misdemeanors, so that prison instead of jail sentences can be imposed.

The suggestion is wise. No system of liquor control will work without adequate punishment of bootlegging. Under national prohibition, even the severe penalties provided by the Jones Act were futile because juries in the wet states refused to convict. But when and if prices become reasonable, juries will return verdicts of guilty to protect rational regulation of the liquor traffic.

One of the best reasons for turning the liquor problem over to the states is that it provides varied experiments in methods of meeting the problem. Each state that permits the sale of liquor can profit from the mistakes of the others. Mr. Becker has discovered a weakness in Missouri's control system. If the reform he proposes remed's that weakness, it will be an advantage too only to Missouri but to other states in which violations of the liquor laws are misde-

GOOD news for Republicans.
President Roceeveit has two fill, 600 jobs to fill which require Republican appointees. One is on the HOLC; as successor to Waiter Newton; the other on the RFC, to take the place of the late John J. Blai. Both losts will be filled at an early date.

Kennedy of the SEC was told that several Democratic Senators have privately urged Bill Borah to start a public subscription fund to pay off the $35,800 owed I. the Democratic National Committee to Kennedy, the latter replied: "Now that is my idea of a swell suggestion That debt is the slowest asset I have and, believe me, I could use the money. By all means urge Senator Borah to go ahead. He has my warm approval."

The RFC saved a neat sum for the B. & C. Railroad when it agreed to take any part of the recent $50,000,000 bond issue which the bankers did not buy. The bankers had first demanded a 5½ per cent interest rate from the B. & C. but with RFC backing they came down to 4½ per cent.

CHICAGO TEACHERS TO GET $25,447,240

Funds for Full Payment of Back Salaries to Be Advanced by R. F. C.

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—Regular paydays are coming for Chicago's 14,-000 school teachers, after four years of uncertainty and disappointment. A total of $25,447,240 still is due them in back salaries which they hope soon to collect.

The Federal Government is coming to their aid by purchasing school bonds secured by $30,000,000 in property not used for school

Before the money could become available, however, it was neces-sary for the Illinois Supreme Court to pass on the legality of the bonds and give the School Board the right to sell them to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Many times during the four years the city's financial condition has made it impossible to pay salaries regularly to either school employes or municipal workers.

Now James B. McCahey, president of the Board of Education says all payrolls can be met when "We are urging Federal authori-ties to make funds available at the earliest opportunity," he says, "and the spirit of co-operation shown by them would indicate that back salaries will be paid at an early date."

The checks the teachers will receive represent salaries from last Nov. 1 to June 1. Pay days prior to last November were met in hit or miss fashion by issuance of tax ansional funds on hand.

Robert C. Keenan, a director o the Chicago division of the Illinois State Teachers' Association, told how Government aid was obtained.
"On Jan. 16," he said, "we wrote to every Illinois Congressman urg ing him to support Federal legisla tion for school relief purposes. "Concurrently, a movement was under way for State legislation permitting the School Board to m gage its properties not used for school purposes for relief. Opposi-tion developed at Washington, and for a long time defeat seemed cer-

Text of Roosevelt's Speech On Bonneville Power Project

than the lower course of the Co-lumbia River, but as far back as 1920 I had the privilege of coming out through these states, through all the great Northwest, and I conceived the great belief that this wonderful valley of the Columbia was one of the greatest assets that not only the Northwest, but all America,

Fourteen years ago I deter-mined that if I ever had the right or the opportunity to do the developing of this grand-river and the territory sur-rounding it, I would do my best to put this great project through. Yes, seeing is believing. Over a year ago, when we first established the principle of commencing great public works projects in every part of the Union, I became firmly con-vinced that the Government should immediately take up construction of Bonneville and the Grand Coulee dams, and so we got started.

was on the twenty-sixth day of September last year, 10 months ago, that the allocation of money for the Bonneville project was made by the White House. I think we have gon a long way in less than a year. Navigation on Columbia.

of us are alive we would see sea-going vessels come up the Columbia River as far as the Dalles.

that the Secretary of War me of a new survey that is being made by the Army engineers. From that survey we wisdom to enlarge these locks over here so that ovean-going ships can pass up as far as the Dalles, and I hope that we can enlarge the navigational needs from the Dalles up so that we can have barge transportation right up into the wheat coun-another river with a problem somewhat similar—a river on

But that was only a comparatively few years ago—within the past 10 years. Through the action of the Federal Government, the channel of the Hudson River was so deepened that Albany, 140 miles from the sea, was made a sea-going port. You have a very similar case on the Columbia. In the same way in the State of New York, above Albany you met the rap-ids and the falls of the Mohawk. It was over 100 years ago that DeWitt Clinton, a Governor of New York, built what was called Clinton's Ditch the entire canal and carried navigation by barge through from the sea to the Great Lakes.

And so I believe that the day will come on the Columbia when we will not only extend sea-go-ing navigation far back into the continent but by sea-going navigation we will be able to extend barge navigation still further back north into the State of Washington and far east in the State of Idaho. That is a dream, my friends, and not an idle dream.

Government To Control Power.
We have evidence of what man can do to improve the condition of mankind. While we are improving navigation are creating power and I al-ways believed in that old sayways believed in that old say-ing of "more power to you." I don't believe that you can have enough power for a long time to come and the power we are developing here is going to be power which for all times is going to be controlled by the Government.

Two years ago when I was in Portland I said the principle of Government needs yardsticks so that the people in this country will know whether they are paying the proper price for the electricity of our times. I conceived the idea that the Gov ernment could create yard-sticks. One has already been started on the Colorado River -two other yardsticks have been undertaken, the Tennessee and the Columbia, and the fourth—the St. Lawrence going to be started.

And then the last reason of all, which I conceive to be of vast importance, is the fact that in this northwestern section of our land we still have the opening of a great opportunity for a vasily increased population. In many sections of this country, as you know, conditions are bad and the land has run out, or has been put to the wrong kind of use. There are many people who want to come to a portion of this country where there will be better chances for themselves and their children. We should make room for crowded fam-ce and Opportunity.

Out here you've not only got space—you've got space that can be used by human beings. nderful land. A land opportunity. A land already peopled by Americans who know whither America is bound. People who are thinking about dvantages for mankind, good education, some play and above all a chance for the people to live their own lives without wondering what is going to happen tomorrow. Security for old age. Security against the ills and accidents that come to people. Above all, security to earn your own living.

So today I am seeing the plo ture that I knew only in blue print form. So far it complete-ly conforms to the blue prints. The chief engineer tells me that nothing stands in the way of its being completed on time, on schedule, and according to plans. So within three years I hope the Bonneville dam will be an actual fact and this fact will militate very greatly to the benefit of the lives, not only of the people of Oregon and Washington, but to the whole course of life of the people of the United States.

I know that you good people are heart and soul behind this project and I think that most of you good people are heart and soul behind what your Government is trying to do to help the people of the United States.

I wish that I might stay here and survey everything in de-tail, but as you know, I have been on a long voyage, and a sailorman does not stay put very long in one place.

I have been very much interested in this wonderful drive up here today; I have delayed to see things along the way and that is why I am late. My train is due to leave and I want to tell you from the bottom of my heart what a privilege it has been to come here, and may I go on with your blessing and may God bless you.

Moderate Rally in Dollar.

A moderate rally in the dollar against leading European gold currencies in early trading indicated that the flurry of selling from abroad, attributed to fresh fears of inflation in the United States, had subsided overnight.

Wall Street commentators for the most part leaned to the view that Paris, which was said to have been the largest seller of dollars, had exaggerated the inflationary signifficance of the Treasury's silver program and renewed agitation for another cut in the gold content of the dollar.

Boston Wool Market.

BOSTON, Aug. 4.—(United States Department of Agriculture.)—Extremely light trading was reported throughout the Boston wool market during the past week. A few sales were closed on Ohlo and similar fleeces at prices about steady to slightly easier than some sales of the past few weeks. The center of interest was the reduction in asking prices on territory and other Western grown wools. This action on quotations for Western grown domestic wools was reported to have been based upon recent declines of prices in foreign markets.

WHEAT AND CORN PRICES ADVANCE AT CHICAGO

CHICAFO, Aug. 4.—Worldwide advancing of grain prices today accompanied broad general speculative buying here.

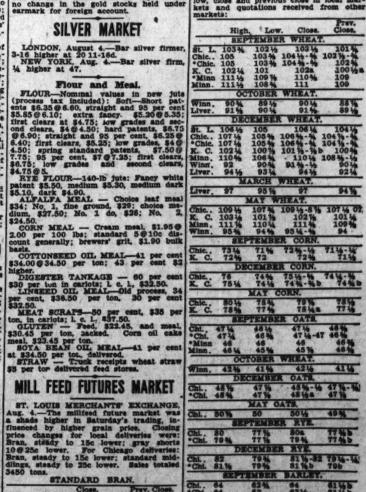

The main immediate incentive for purchase orders came from comment of abnormal dearth of moisture curtailing the estimated yield of corn in the Unived States and of wheat in Canada. Traders said the world grain trade appeared to have commenced to take notice of changes in the supply and demand situation resulting from persistent drouth and heat througout vast areas.

Wheat closed strong, 1½ 6 2½ above yesterday's finish, September new $1.04% 672½c, cats %-%c advanced, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 30 cents.

In his speeches last night, Milligan repeated his charge that Judge Ernest M. Tipton of the Missouri Supreme Court had been active in behalf of County Judge Harry S. Truman of Jackson County, Penergast candidate.

Referring to Judge Tipton's de nial, stating he had been out of Jefferson City only one day since the campaign started, Milligan said: "Judge Tipton evidently forgets his trips to Mexico, Vandalia, Bowling Green and Louisiana."

He also repeated his assertion that Chairman William L. Igoe of the Board of Police Commissioners and Mayor Dickmann were "using Congressman Cochran to win poli-tical domination of Missouri in the hope of insuring Dickmann's election as Governor two years hence."
Truman continued his speeches in Southeast Missouri, speaking last night at Poplar Bluff.

DAZZLING DEANS, WITH 31 VICTORIES, CAN WIN 46, IF THEY STICK TO THEIR PACE

By J. Roy Stockton

Jerome Herman has his nineteenth victory of the season tucked away safely in the record book, Paul has a dozen and with 56 more games to play it seems certain that the Dazzling Deans will more than make good on their spring prediction to register 40 or 45 victories for the 1934 Cardinals.

Frankie Frisch's team has played 8 games thus far and the Dean boys have won 31 of them. If they ontinue the same pace, they will have 46 triumphs when the race is run, and considering their splendid record thus far, it would not be surprising if they exceeded that to-

There will be a pause in the drive of the Dazzling Deans today, as Tex Carleton is scheduled to oppose the Pirates in the second game of the series, but tomorrow there will be a double-header with the Buccaneers, and Paul probably will be on the hill in one of the contests, uthpaw Larry French or Heine Meine, the Count of Luxemburg, will be the Pittsburgh pitcher this

It is reasonable to assume that Dizzy and Paul will pitch at least two games out of each five remaining and that percentage would make them starting pitchers in 22 more contests. If they won only half of them, they would finish the season with 42 games won, and it is almost an insult to the firm of Dean and Dean to suggest that over a period of eight weeks they would do no better than break even with Dizzy, to reach the unusual total of 30 victories, needs only 11 more, and he has his heart set on being the first pitcher to win 30 games in the National League since Grover Cleveland Alexander. Dazzy Vance approached the mark in 1924, when he registered 28 tri-1924, when he registered 28 triumphs and was voted the most valuable player in the league. With the 30-game goal in mind, Dean will be eager to work frequently and may even go to the hill every fourth day. In that case he could appear in at least 14 more games. Dizzy would have to win 11 out of 14 to reach the 30 mark, but he won 18 before he suffered his fourth defeat of the season, so it is not unreasonable to visualize Jerome Herman achieving his objective.

Morgan was considered down and out and his decisive victory puts Ghnouly in the doubtful column, along with Wesley Ramey who als. had beaten Kelso on points. Morgan was not considered in the running with the other two Americans.

Paid Burns $30,000.

HOWEVER, nobody has inco he left thes. shores and a return match with Morgan prob-ably will settle that issue. In the meantime the Australian merry-go-round will bring together Ghnouly and Herb Bishop, another Australian standout. Australia always has been a strong fight center and has contributed some pretty good scrap-pers to ring history. Although isolated and under heavy expense in importing fighters from England and America, it has conducted some famous international contests, including the battle by which Jack Johnson won the world's championship in 1908 from Tommy Burns. Australia paid Burns $30,000 in advance for this match—the first time in history that fighter received that much cash before his POTTS OPPOSES SUTTER

ing to approach greatness received the plaudits of big league fans today for feats which overshadowed the unchanged status of two close pennant races.

There were Lou Gehrig, off on a streak of home runs and ordinary hits, Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rows, with a new season's record for consecutive pitching victories, and Carl Hubbell, with 22 successive scoreless innings on the hill written into the books. All three figured yesterday in victories for the Tankess, Tigers and Giants which left Detroit a game ahead of New York in the American League race and the Giants three games up on Chicago in the National.

Gehrig, who has made seven straight hits and reached first base nine times in two days, smacked his left role.

League race.
The pace setter, Heinie Manush of Washington, remained on the bench cost of the time and his loss was only two points as he hit four times in 12 attempts. That gave him a .395 average when the figures were rounded up after yesterday's games.

Gehrig, meanwhile, collected 16 safe blows, including six home runs, in 30 trips to the plate. He sent his average up 13 points to .378 and moved from fifth place to second among the league leaders.

Florida Softball Team to Play Here

The Florida baseball invasion process is being reversed. Instead of teams from the North swarming over the land of grapefruit and oranges, we are about to witness a succession of visits by "champion" softball teams whose natural habitat is Florida.

The firs of the Florida invaders will appear at the West Side Park, on Skinker near Delmar, on Sunday and Monday, opposing a picked team of West Side players. The second Florida team is scheduled to play here Aug. 27 and 28.

According to the advance agent's report, the team which plays here tomorrow and Monday is com-posed of men who are regularly employed in the orange growing industr . They are employed either in the groves, packing houses or fertilizer works of the Waverly Growers' Association at Waverly, Fla. The team is making an extensive tour, taking in Chicago and Toronto, Canada.

The President Returns. Prayers and Cannon. New Ideas Cause Fear. Earthquakes and Mad Foxes.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE.

B ANDS played, crowds cheered, as President Roosevelt landed at Portland, Ore., back from his pleasant, useful, combination fishing trip and inspection of Uncle Sam's island possessions, all the appelled as a scaled to hear Mire. of Uncle Sam's island possessions, All the people are glad to have him back safely, and will now doubtless begin to answer the questions he asked on the radio, before he left, something after the fashion of "Jesting Pilate," who "would not wait for an answer."

You remember that the President asked all Americans:

That is the unanimous report of hotel keepers. They say the Wall street slump which came a few days ago discourages their business and they wonder why something is not done "to hold up Wall street prices that represent the public's opinion of all great properties in America."

In Germany, cannon boom loudly, expressing the national sorrow, while many pray for the soul of the old patriot who served his country so well. They pray perhaps also that his memory may have power to curb Hitler, as Hindenburg is supposed to have curbed the Chancellor while living.

Chancellor Hitler tells Germany: "I am steeped in the conviction that all authority of the State must pro-ceed from the people and be rati-fied in free, secret election."

Germany will vote and it is easy to guess how. As a matter of fact, Germans are still overwhelmingly with Hitler, as regards numbers, although not quite so "overwhelm-ingly" as they were some time ago.

Mild earthquake shocks have gently rocked the coast of Maine recently, but nothing catyclysmic happened. Windows rattled, pictures were found out of plumb on the walls. That is an old country and the rocky coast has probably done its important "settling down" in ages long past.

More important than the gentle earthquakes—in Maine is an epi-demic of rabies among foxes, that, in their madness, have attacked children, dogs, cows, even biting sutemphiles

Trappers will try to exterminate them over an area of 300 square miles. All wild animals, except deer, may have to be killed. In England there is no rabies,

Past Mistakes Help Prevent Future Ones

It Is Only By Remembering And Admitting Errors That They Are Avoided.

By Elsie Robinson

DARE to remember! Dare to re-member everything! That takes nerve. Easy enough to remem-ber the pleasant times in life, the successes you've achieved, the com-sliments you've received, the good leeds you've done— BUT

TIME OTHER - THE YOU'VE DERED, BLUN-MADE A FOOL OF Y O U R SELF, TURNED YEL-LOW, DONE CHEAP AND YEL-DONE S H A M EFUL AND CRUEL THINGS. You don't want

Tou don't want to remember things like that—things that humiliste and worry you. You wan't to escape from them, and so you have invented an elaborat: tissue of alibis and excuses which you use, even in your secret thoughts, to comfort your vanity or soothe your conscience. Or perhaps you've adopted some sentimental creed which tells you not to think about such errors—to "look at the bright side only,"
But if ye look at the bright side only you learn nothing about yourself, or life, and as a consequence you'll continue to commit stupid, silly and vicious acts. For the cause of them will still be in you.

YOU'LL NEVER PREVENT MISTAKES IN THE FUTURE UNLESS YOU STUDY THE MIS TAKES OF THE PAST.

Stop thinking of those past mis-takes as blots on your records. As a matter of fact, a mistake is your greatest asset—if you'll use it right.

YOU CAN LEARN MORE FROM ONE PAINFUL MISTAKE THAN YOU CAN FROM A THOU-SAND PLEASANT SUCCESSES. Dare to remember! Dare to re-member everything! Dare to lift the curtain and face all the badness and madness and sadness that has come into your life. Don't linger over it unnecessarily. Don't linger over it unnecessarily.

Don't make a wallow of regret, nor a racket of self-pity; but take a good, honest look. Stop making alibis. Stop blaming the other fellow. Admit your own responsibility for the thing you have done.

He, too, may have been somewhat responsible BUT IF YOU'LL HAN-DLE YOUR OWN SHARE OF THE BLAME, YOU'LL HAVE YOUR HANDS FULL WITHOUT FUSSING OVER HIS. Study why you did that thing of which you are ashamed. What secret weakness, in your own nature tricked you into it?

I am now paying for being the "sweet, understanding, lovable and sharing sweetheart." Don't make the mistake I did. However, let me assure you, I am not advising you to go to the other extreme and invoke upon yourself the title of "Gold Digger." There is a happy medium for all girls. Sometimes, in this aga, it is forgotten that girls in this age, it is forgotten that girls seems, there is such a thing as a still deserve that same consideration that their mothers and grandmothers had. That is, in a modern the mothers had that is, in a modern the mothers it's the nature of the mothers had. mothers had. That is, in a modern manner of speaking. I, too, was satisfied with a neighborhood show, a ride, sitting, or visiting, and perhaps occasionally going to a neighborhood garden, and I, too, to my sorrow and unhappiness, am finding that other girls are the sharers of my sacrifices. Now. after a sorrow and unhappiness, am finding that other girls are the sharers of my sacrifices. Now, after a number of years, and, almost too late for my own self-respect, I am calling a halt. It hurts only too much. First, I suffered mentally and now it is beginning to show physically. However, I will "snap" out of it because I know, with my head governing my heart, that that is the only way.

Men, believe it or not, still like a girl who places herself on a certain level and, at all cost, maintains it. Be willing to share, but take the best and less of it, rather than anything. Dear Mrs. Carr:

Without knowing the young lady I shall make a wild guess (but which I think is true, however wild), and define her trouble as OO much introspection and not enough imagination, for imagina-tion is good (and it is deplorable many persons have none).

An introspective person tends to be conceited, which leads to egotism, because you think too much of "I." A feeling of inferiority with tism, because you think too much of "I." A feeling of inferiority with superiority takes possession of a person, which eventually leads to self-seclusion, which leaves him the link of consciousness between lf-seclusion, which leaves him morbidly gloomy, even with his own

THE host or hostess who like to entertain in the grand manner should see a certain champagne cooler. It is made of chromium metal, but perhaps that isn't so important as the fact that it has a separate plate near the base to permit the melting ice to drain. Another feature is the compartment plate which fits over the top and has space into which two bottles can be thrust, thus keeping them apart.

A jigger and cork combination that is popular in the St. Louis stores goes by the name of the "Thrifty Jigger." This name is not due entirely to the feature of the two-in-one gadget, but to the special contrivance which enables the host to pour his liquor without removing the cork. An air-tight bottle that has no chance of losing its spirits results from this unique stopper.

CHAPTER SIX.

HE girls in the employ of the Severn Lumber Co. were unanimous in their opinion that although Larry Severn was the better looking of the two sons, Kent was the most likable. The men weren't concerned with the looks of either Larry or Kent. They were concerned with the ability, and they agreed that of the two Kent was the easier to work for. Larry was nervous, inclined to be irritable. Kent was easy going, kinder, but in his kindness and friendliness he was more exacting. He knew what he wanted and he knew how to get work out of his men and women.

SYNOPSIS:

But the likeness stopped there, for Larry had inherited the elder Severn's disposition, which at times was far from pleasant, even absolutely nasty when Henry Severn was suffering from his chronic complaint, gout. The two floors of Severn employes including his sons, trembled on those days, as Henry Severn meant they should tremble. This had been one of those days, and Kent was weary. He had been in conference two hours with his father, and the two hours seemed like 20 years. Now with Mary in his office, his father's searing criticism was rolling away from him. How soothing she was to him! Even when he walked through the outer office and glanced her way, catching her shy smile, he felt uplifted, better. "Not tomorrow."

"You know you're sort of a mysterious person, Mary. I don't understand you. Sometimes I think I know you—when we were on the 'Ardeth,' I thought I'd known you all my life. Since you've worked for me—you seem so strange. I don't know what's come over you. You seem almost like another person. I like you, and I want to be friends, and yet I feel that you don't want me to be a friend. I've told myself it's because you're working for me, and yet I know that it isn't true, because after what we've been through together—the 'Grace Larsen' was, a bit of an experience, wasn't it?—you couldn't feel that way about me. Certainly you shouldn't let the fact that I'm your immediate boss stand in the way. That doesn't matter to me, except yet I know that it isn't true, because after what we've been through together—the 'Grace Larsen' was, a bit of an experience, wasn't it?—you couldn't feel that way about me. Certainly you should accept me as a friend. You shouldn't let the fact that I'm your immediate boss stand in the way. That doesn't matter to me, except in business hours, and it shouldn't to you. I wouldn't be asking you to go out if I didn't want to. Get me?"

Mary's hand found the edge of the desk, and her fingers gripped it as hard as they could. Was he suspicious? Perhaps she should get out more, do normal, natural things to avert suspicion. It was only because she didn't want to involve anyone in her troubles, in the poor the wall paper, figure out if you cannot change the pictures or hang a tapestry over the spot and in this way obliterate it until you can afford to repaper. # Problems That Devolve Upon Business Girls

Suggestions For Difficult Situations That Occur During Working Hours.

By Emily Post

Dear Mrs. Post:

Y OU seldom write anything directly encouraging for those of us who belong to the working world. Perhaps it's because people think manners are only put on after working hours? Anyway, I wish you would help me by telling me how to tactfully handle the man for whom I work, who is unnecessarily attentive to me. I can't quit my job without making my mother and little sister suffer. Can't you suffer. Can't you write something to "Office Philanderers"? Answer: We hear a great deal —that is, we see on the screen and read stories about the overat-tentive employer of the young and pretty employe, and I am sure that where there is so much smoke, Emily Post there must be a certain amount of wood that is certain amount of wood that is at least charring, and sometimes its origin is actually—though quite unintentionally—the fault of the girl. In trying hard to please her employer in order to keep her job or to win promotion, her very attentiveness to his wants, her response to his mode, many very well. sponse to his moods, may very well set a match to dry tinder and start a fire, which would never other-wise have blazed. Many young women have had to leave good jobs for this very cause, and the only answer is that they have had only answer is that they have had bad luck, since these very tactics have made others secure and valued employes.

Dear Mrs. Post: Please say s word to the women who treat salesgirls with much less feeling than they would a stray dog or cat/ We, the employes, are taught that we must assume the attitude that the customer is always right. But why aren't the customers taught to treat those who wait on them at least as human beings: Why is it all right for a customer to lose her temper, while we lose the job if we so much as show a sign of tem-

In answer, the only advice I can give is that impersonal efficiency and courtesy will seldom get you into unpleasant situations. When a customer is unpleasant, do the best you can; not for hers but for your own sake. Remember that self-control is the first requirement of every thoroughbred. If you are forced to wait on an illbred shrew it should not affect you unless she goads you into being equally vulgar and losing your own temper. After all, what is one customer? A mat-

The former husband of a woman who married one of the Marcus Loew tribe took advantage of her new husband's absence from the city to telephone her.

For a classic in understatement, one that Mr. Woolcott would cherish, we recommend the comment of Police Commissioner Aliman of Chicago. When newspaper men wanted to know what he thought of the spectacular Dillinger killing, he yawned: "Oh, I should call it a pretty good job."

Al and Lee Reiser, the pianists, recall the time a critic met a young actress, whom he had just roasted in a review of a new play.

"Oh," she oh'd. "How could you say such things about me: Don't you realize how sensitive I must be about my first important role?" "My dear," said the actor-mur-derer, "you are more sensitive than you have a right to be."

It was very hard and very painful to get off the plaster and it took a great deal of time. But at last Willy Nilly succeeded. His ears stick out as much as ever. Well he hadn't had the plaster on long enough for it to do any good in that way. His ears were red and looked burned, and the skin was sore. No, the plasters were not for his ears. And he had really worked harder than he needed to have done in Top Notch's General Store, because he wanted to do something for Top Notch in return for the plaster.

It was not Top Notch's fault. Too Notch just gathered odds and end for his store and had offered the plaster to Willy Nilly when the ad-hesive tape was ruined.

Juntied his shoestrings—his feet must have relief before he could trudge one inch farther. Why did they ache at such a time?

They were the same feet that 13 years before had carried him through countless miles of French mire; that had forged for him a way through the almost impensivable thickets of the Argonne; I that had thudded with a thousand others in the long, long victory march.

And now, just when he needed them desperately, they ached. For gone were the high-speed elevators and the deep cushiony rugs. Gone was his automobile—only yesterday a flint-hearted finance company had taken it away when he possessed on 25 cents. Should he buy a supper or a bed? He speat it for a bed—a dirty bed in a room occupied by two other strangers.

So that next morning on a park bench he found a day-old newspaper. "Salesmen wanted," he read. Carefully he scanned the column, then called on an advertiser in a near-by office building. The sales manage: was all smiles. "Boy, this is a winner," he greeted Clark. "Something every salesman had dreamed about, but never found before—a set of unbreakable china! Make the terms as easy as you like, even a low as one dollar a week for eighty-five weeks. Bring the contract in here and if our credit man says it's o. k., we hand you seven dollars. Isn't that a honey?"

Clark was familiar with the "china set" proposition. It wasn't china at all—just cheap, gaudy crockery.
Clark started out carrying the Clark started out carrying the heavy sample case, hoping that he would soon find a weakling. But his luck was bad. The neighborhood was a polyglot one. Now it was getting late and Clark was almost in a panic. Unless he made a sale he would have nothing to eat and no place to sleep. Worst of all, he could not canvass any more because of the pain in his feet. He must have new shoes.

"Where do you live, son?"

The boy pointed to a small house with a littered front yard. "Come on, mister, I'll take you over."

"Thanks, son; let's go."

Clark rose and limped over to the house. If the agony in his feet would only stop. A work-weary woman admitted them. Clark's instinct told him this was "the kill."

He began to edge his way in, and a moment later he was inside, where several dirty - faced youngsters played on the uncarpeted floor.

ADY," he began, "you are one of a very few selected persons in this neighborhood to be honored by our special adverto be honored by our special advertising campaign—good for today only—a set of these unbreakable china dishes, a direct importation from the Orient." He swept away her objections. When he deemed the right moment had come he handed her the contract and a pencil. She signed.

"Now, madam, just a matter of form. A few questions to fill out so our credit man may know you better. Is your husband working?"

"Yes," meekly.

"What is his salary?"

"Twenty-two dollars a week."

Just then there came a shrick from the boy who had shown Clark to the house. He was crying and holding his foot. Tenderly the woman picked up the crying child.

"What's the matter, darlin'?"

"I ran a sliver in my foot."

"What's the matter, darin?"
"I ran a sliver in my foot."
Then Clark saw that the sole of the shoe was almost gone. He noticed the thin, undernourished body, and his glance took in the undernourished figures of the other children.

The mother was pulling the splinter out of the boy's foot and talking to him at the same time. "Big brave soldiers don't cry be-cause their feet hurt."

The boy stopped crying as if by magic. "Momsie, I am a brave soldier and I won't cry again."
Clark looked at the brave soldier admiringly. The woman was speaking:

AUTHOR'S NOTE: These answers are given from the scientific point of view. Science puts the rights of ganized society above the rights of individuals.

1 —As a rule, no. For many reasons: More women than men think about themselves, their heart interests and emotions. Men live more in the outside world, in the world of doing, building, organizing. They tend to think of other people in the mass. Women concentrate upon individuals and their relations to them. Furthermore, few women have the opportunity for outside contacts that men have; they are not only more locked within the home, all of which centers in the home, all of which centers in the husband and children. # Paging the Ghost of Jean Lafitte

By Arthur "Bugs" Baer.

G EN. HUEY LONG is picking up the Battle of New Orleans where Andy Jackson left off.

He is opposed by Gen. Walmsley, who is Mayor of New Orleans when Gen. Long ain't around. Walmsley has 1600 police in back of him while Gen. Long depends on the militia, which has never lost a postponed battle yet.

Like the trouble in Vienna, the contest will be for the radio station. The winner will broadcast until he gets a commercial sponsor.

Gen. Long has infantry, cavalry and artillery and is doing some propaganda among the Boy Scouts.
